How news of lost relatives and friends in the warring countries, such as Poland, Austria and Russia, is being obtained for Jewish people in this country, and how the American Jews sending money to feed and clothe sufferers of their faith, to build schools and rehabilitate the war-swept country is told in an article written exclusively for the Survey press service. The latter branch co-operates with the trade unions and solicits from business people. The woman's auxiliary of this committee, with Mrs. Philip Lewisohn as chairman, has planned a series of tag days to gather money. To keep alive the 2,500,909 Jews in the twenty Russian provinces under the care of the Jewish Colonization Society in Petrograd, it is estimated that 620,909 rubles per month is needed. While the money is being used primarily to buy bread, it is being spent also, it is declared, to rebuild schools. In these schools children will be clothed and fed, and distracted as far as possible from the misery in which they are growing up. Where armies have fought and passed on, as in Galicia, some of the money is going for rehabilitation.
